

focus.

Cancer: Community events provide a focus; pluses to do with income are also a plus combining even more fun and games.

Leo: A rare relationship with a difficult someone on the home front goes well. Income ideas are ladled with affectionate thoughts.

Virgo: Be the source of sweetness as you communicate this in relaxed manner. A behind the scenes affair goes well with the end of a matter.

Libra: Latent feelings combine with thoughts — send a Valentine now! Professional associates work well with community events; be aware of controversy though — you may be vulnerable.

Scorpio: A determined bulldozer attitude is the right one; associates, club memberships communicate their best now.

Sagittarius: Career ideas get a green light somehow providing a fun time too. Long-distance travel, self-promotion support also appears.

Capricorn: Long distance travel affairs and self-promotion are to be enjoyed. A chronic behind-the-scenes situation gets lighter and details are revealed.

Aquarius: Now is the time to entertain thoughts of getting loans and mortgages. A partner supports a financial situation with the help of professional associates or club members.

Pisces: A partner attracts with pleasant thoughts (for a change); a home front issue lightens up regarding finances.

Give me a call if you want an astrological reading on your finances.

— Victor Fletcher
vpflet@hotmail.com

Confidentiality is assured.

In August 20, 2001 I predicted on these pages a 911 tragedy to occur within 30 days. I also predicted the exact day the bombing would stop in Serbia several weeks in advance. Unfortunately, the New World Order types also plan events to coincide with what disasters astrologers suggest will happen.

I offer a monthly update on your individual horoscope if you wish to receive this for a small fee.

See ad below.

Till Aug. 31/ 2008
Achieve goals through determination and sheer guts. Doors can be forced open. Flirtations abound but later questions about affections and possibility of arguments occur; the month ends with peaceful Venus in its own sign Libra.

Aries: A focus on health issues gives results in new ideas.

Taurus: Fun and games combined with affection are in your thoughts; a partner shines by displaying great strength.

Gemini: Home affairs are pleasant as both thoughts and an affectionate attitude are the

Astrology Course Available Only To Intelligent, Open-Minded Individuals

Learn Astrology From Toronto Astrologer Who Publishes and Edits Toronto Street News.

Learn how the 911 event was predicted plus the exact day the bombing in Serbia stopped!

The 911 event was predicted on these pages Aug. 20, 2001 as well as business disaster which entailed the closing of both airports and stock exchanges for 5 full days.

Ongoing lessons available by e-mail plus lessons in person if required.

Contact: Victor at vpflet@hotmail.com for a description of costs and required books. Courses are adjustable to your individual needs and budgets.

Learn how the Benjamin Fulford stories published in this paper were researched further to confirm astrologically how his great grandfather became a multi-millionaire Ottawa senator who made his fortune selling patent medicines globally.

Learn how a scoundrel such as now-deceased president Nixon was able to survive politically for decades.

Learn how the Bre-X gold fraud involved former PM Mulroney and the gold fraud itself.

Learn new prognostications on the anticipated global 2012 debacle.

Working with (against?) 5 separate former CIA physicist contractors working in parapsychology institutes I was able to expose the true source of "remote viewing" and determine CIA moles still recruiting natural psychics — sometimes operating in Toronto.

Hillary Clinton's rich friend 'Lady' de Rothschild ambushes Barack Obama

Diehard Hillary fans plan to protest at the party's crowning of Obama — and may even vote for John McCain — Sarah Baxter

Obama and McCain make pitch to evangelical Christians

At the Democratic national convention next week, Lynn Forester, Lady de Rothschild, one of Britain's most influential political hostesses, will be contemplating treachery. She poured her heart and money into Hillary Clinton's campaign and she is thinking of voting for John McCain, the Republican candidate, for president.

She is not impressed by Barack Obama and doubts he will reach the White House. "My loyalty is to the Democrats winning. Barack Obama is going to have a serious problem getting elected, for good reason," she said in an interview.

"The party needs to face the fact that without Hillary Clinton on the ticket, the Democrats will probably lose."

Rothschild, 54, is a New York businesswoman and top fundraiser for Clinton who married into the British banking dynasty.

The billionaire Sir Evelyn de Rothschild, 22 years her senior and former chairman of the family firm, NM Rothschild, will be with her in Denver when Obama is crowned the victor. She regards the presumptive Democratic nominee, 47, as something of a usurper.

The Rothschilds spent the night of their wedding dinner in the Lincoln bedroom at the White House when Bill Clinton was president, so her loyalty to Hillary is understandable. However, the passionate distrust of Obama shared by many Clinton supporters is turning into a headache for the Democrats.

Leon Panetta, Bill Clinton's former White House chief of staff, was tasked by the Obama campaign this summer with soothing ruffled feelings and helping Hillary loyalists to get over their sense of loss. It has been a demanding assignment.

"There is a sense of entitlement that almost seems to be inbred," Panetta said. "They are convinced Hillary is the one who should be assuming the mantle and it's tough to crack that."

Rothschild is the founder of Together4Us, a group formed to "honour" Clinton and the nearly 18m voters who supported her in the primaries. Among its demands were a state-by-state roll-call of votes — a final show of muscle by the vanquished Clinton — and a prime speaking slot for her.

They got what they wanted after Obama caved in last week. Seasoned advisers fear the convention is shaping up to be a divisive Bill and Hillary psycho-drama. "It's not something that I would have recommended, but they're trying to bend over backwards as far as they can to accommodate her," said Panetta. "I'm a little disturbed that this keeps playing out."

The former president and first lady will both deliver big speeches, while diehard Hillary supporters will hold rallies and acclaim their candidate during the roll-call of votes.

"I think the roll-call will be a cathartic moment," said Rothschild. "There will be a lot of people who will say, 'Oh, what might have been' and will vote for Obama but there will be a lot of tears."

The roll-call will not be enough to bring Rothschild back into the fold, however. "We're not going to win by pretending problems with Barack Obama don't exist. He has a huge problem connecting with ordinary Americans, who think, 'He doesn't understand me.' He is not modest; he is arrogant. He radiates elitism."

It is a surprising charge from a wealthy socialite, but Rothschild believes she understands true grit. She was born Lynn Forester from New Jersey and built her multi-million-dollar telecommunications company before she met her husband. "It is not disloyal to raise legitimate questions about Barack Obama," she said. "He started running for president before he even set foot in the US Senate."

"No matter what he says, he has not explained properly why he sat next to Reverend Jeremiah Wright [his former pastor] for 20 years. He talks about an end to partisanship but he has no record of reaching across the aisle for any purpose."

Although Rothschild shuttles between London and New York, she shares Penn's assessment. "Barack Obama can use the words 'the American dream', but they don't resonate," she said. "He magnified the problem by going to Berlin and calling himself a citizen of the world."

She also resents a lack of effort to pay off Clinton's $20m campaign debt. "He has provided her with a pittance compared to what the Clintons have given Obama," Rothschild said. "Her debt could have been cleared within 10 days. It's ungracious."

She is particularly incensed by the treatment of Bill Clinton during the primaries, when the former president was accused of playing the race card. "Barack Obama would not stand up and say, 'It's outrageous, it's not permissible' and speak up for him."

The enduring hostility to Obama is reflected in a Pew poll, published last week, showing that 18% of Clinton supporters intend to vote for McCain. With polling averages close to a dead heat between McCain and Obama, every vote counts.

Rothschild has not yet made up her mind. "I haven't ruled out voting for McCain," she said. "I like him a lot." She is waiting to see who Obama picks as his running mate and has her heart set on Clinton.

Video: Lady Lynn Forester de Rothschild interview on Fox news about her support for Clinton over Obama: <http://uk.youtube.com/watch?v=G1EZJ2hN3a8>

'Lady' de Rothschild