

Toronto Street News apologizes: We can no longer print certain Jewish PhD professor columnists because the racist Zionists in Canada control Metro Police who tell us we may be charged for allowing Jewish writers to speak freely. Where are the 'fearless' press whores at the Sun, Star, Globe, Post? Here's 2 more Jewish writer friends of TSN (below) who have been threatened; Professor Finkelstein was fired; Chamish was victimized in Toronto; we can no longer maintain a previous level of 60% Jewish writing in Toronto Street News. —Your Editor.

TIME TO TAKE ISRAEL BACK by Barry Chamish The city of Netivot, in the western Negev, as well as the southern Jerusalem neighborhood of Gilo came under fire Saturday night after midnight...Terrorists opened fire toward IDF soldiers near the Jewish town of Psagot in the Binyamin region on Saturday night.

At least 20 missiles were fired by Gaza terrorists at the coastal city of Ashkelon between midnight and 8:00 a.m.

- INN news from Israel

Israel is in the beginning stages of complete chaos. Defense Minister Ehud Barak warned the enemy that Ashkelon cannot be attacked. Oh sure, Sderot, that's okay, it's full of Moroccans and you can do what you want there. But Ashkelon...real people need the place. Then came the live fire attacks on Jerusalem, not by Hamas but by our "peace" partner Fatah. What gall, and just when we had begun handing half the town to them. Yes, actually physically started divvying up the town!

After Ashkelon, the port of Ashdod will be enflamed by Katyusha missiles. Step by step, little by little, Hizbullah and Syria will make sure Tel Aviv is flaming rubble. Look at the destruction of Ashkelon by a mere 20 missiles. All the firetrucks in all the stations, in all the land, won't put Tel Aviv back together when it's hit by 10,000 rockets in a day.

But let's look at this chaos as an opportunity. From out of the ashes Israel will renew itself by purging the nation of its highest betrayers. When the nation burns, while tohu vebohu rules every corner, we will have our moment to seize and interrogate the criminals who brought the nation to its bloody knees.

I await the magical moment when the mob that is us will storm the President's House and imprison Shimon Yech Peres. There are guards there and a few may not abandon their posts. The rest will be overcome. We shall not have the same resistance to the capture and arrest of Yossi Beilin and Carmi Gillon. They will imme-

Finkelstein gives Israeli-American relations lecture

Norman G. Finkelstein spoke at the Musical Recital Hall at CSUN, titled, "The Coming Break-up of American Zionism," on Feb. 13.

In a series of lectures, Norman Finkelstein, a noted political scholar and a former professor at DePaul University (fired by Zionist intimidation) of Chicago, presented a lecture titled, "A Critique on the Walt-Mearsheimer Thesis," which focuses on the "core" thesis of a work that touches on Israeli lobby ties with American foreign policy.

"His case shows the difficulty of making wise decisions about teachers and students who work in political areas of scholarship," said Provost and Vice President of Academic Affairs Harry Hellenbrand, who invited Finkelstein to speak at CSUN.

The thesis comes from a working paper titled, "The Israel Lobby," written by John Mearsheimer, a professor from the University of Chicago, and Stephen Walt, a professor from Harvard University.

Finkelstein explained why he only focused on the thesis of the paper. "I wanted to avoid all of the nuances because I think a lot of the nuances are not really nuances, but efforts to detect themselves in the politically correct environment," Finkelstein said. He later explained why he does not support the thesis.

"I should be supporting (it), but I don't determine my allegiances by ethnicities," he said. "I determine my allegiances by where the facts take me and in looking through the (working paper) and reading it very carefully, I simply was not convinced by the core thesis."

"The thrust of their argument was there is this powerful lobby in the U.S.," he said. "It is, they called it, the Israel lobby, but that in itself is an euphemism of sorts because clearly they believe the core of that lobby is American Jews or some American Jews. Their diately be charged with the cruel casualties they brought us with their Oslo "peace" accord. The crime; the murder and maiming of 10,000 good Jews, military and civilian. The punishment; whatever befits the machinations of the felons. To learn the facts finally, the interrogations will be long and merciless. But Peres and Gillon will tell us the truth about their murder of Rabin, the frameup of Goldstein, the systematic elimination of political opponents from straight shootings, to "accidents," and unexplained sickness. And Peres will finally say who he was working for and detail all the corruption of his cronies. If not...if not.

From Beilin, who unlike Peres, was the real father of Oslo, we will extract what the real purpose of Oslo was. After a few hours he will speak of an Israel without borders, as he bragged to his cohorts. We will offer him the opportunity to tell us who funneled their money to him from Europe for his initiatives to mass-murder the Jews of Israel. If he is reluctant in any way to confess...

He won't be...this coward will do anything to save his sniveling life.

In a few days we'll know who murdered Sharon, Ben Elissar, Arlosoroff, Rafal, Gur, Judge Azar, Wayne Owens et al. We'll finally know who kidnapped the Yemenite infants of the '50s and why, at the same time, 108,000 Sephardic children were irradiated in their brains to "treat" ringworm. We'll know all about the Gush Katif atrocity and all the agents and spies in our midst. And we will learn at last, the truth of Weizmann, Kastner and the Holocaust. And that is only after a few days. By then Israel's military will have overcome or not. Either way, finally, as Israel burns to cinders or doesn't, we will have our own sweet victory over the worst curse ever to have plagued us, Labor Zionism.

Secret Information From the Shabak
Following is information from the Shabak [Israel's General Security Service, sort of like the FBI]. While numerous details are missing, and some of it has been summarized and edited, the general tenor is clear enough:

"Topic: We have received orders from above to prepare the next evacuation. There is still no date and no decision, but an option is being debated; the Gaza evacuation exacted an emotional and economic price, and took a toll of the army qualification is important...they're promoting Israel's agenda."

Finkelstein said promoting Israel's agenda is "half of the problem," but the other half of the problem is that Israel's agenda is contrary to the best interest of the U.S....so in promoting Israel's agenda, they are effectively underlying what they call U.S. national interests in the world."

The first argument that Finkelstein focused on was of the beginning of the main thesis made by Mearsheimer and Walt, which is "U.S. support of Israel does not serve U.S. national interest."

"They say that Israel was a strategic asset for the U.S. during the Cold War," he said stating that he was using Mearsheimer's and Walt's words and not his own. "Mainly it acted as a check on soviet expansion in the Middle East."

Finkelstein said he disagreed with Mearsheimer's and Walt's argument because it is "not what Israel's utility was to the U.S." He added that the main concern of the U.S. in the Middle East was anti-western nationalism and not soviet expansion. "That is, the U.S. was fearful that an independent autonomous power may emerge in the Middle East that will threaten its strategic interests, most notably, oil," Finkelstein said.

"Secondly, Israel offers advantages to the west or to the U.S. which cannot be duplicated anywhere else in the Middle East," Finkelstein said. "You often hear the argument, 'Why is the U.S. investing so much in Israel and alienating the Arab regimes?' Doesn't it make much more sense for the U.S. to work with the neighboring Arab countries rather than work with Israel, from the point of view of our national interest?"

Finkelstein said the problem behind Mearsheimer's and Walt's argument is that it "completely misunderstands the special utility and the special value of Israel."

"Israel's special value for the U.S., which can't be duplicated anywhere in the Middle East is that fundamentally, Israel was a creation of the Western world," he said. He added as well. Therefore, the program under debate is not an evacuation but the question of leaving the settlers in place, inside the Palestinian Authority, without Israeli sovereignty and without the protection of the I.D.F. According to the information we possess, on that day, the armed forces of the Hamas will carry out murderous terror attacks, and then the settlers will flee into Israel. An irrevocable condition for the plan to succeed is public support. Towards that end, the settlers have to be presented as weird, violent, quarrelsome people, disturbers of the peace, who through their own efforts have brought ruin on themselves. They wanted things to be this way, and they mustn't be pitied. Therefore, at this stage we have been asked to weigh the possibility of planting provocateurs amongst the settlers in order for them to incite the youth and raise the level of verbal and physical violence.

"Survey: The settlers in Judea and Samaria have no support or admiration amongst the general population. During the Disengagement from Gaza, there was no public storm of protest. Business went on as usual. On the day of the Disengagement, itself, news coverage of the evacuation had low ratings. This population continues to be viewed as eccentric and extremist. The Amona evacuation contributed greatly to this. Likewise, those who go up to live in outposts are perceived as hotheads who all their lives look for ways to make trouble for the country. True, the extremist portion of the population is insignificant and doesn't reach even one percent of the settlers, yet it is very vocal and every aggressive pronouncement they make merits wide media coverage. In the meantime, there is no physical violence among them, but just constant verbal violence. They say: More evacuations will occur "over our dead bodies". If they are evacuated, "there will be a war that will make Amona pale by comparison". They say, "We will fight against the traitorous army", etc., etc. Yet we have to suppose that many youths will advance from words to deeds and will commit acts against the security forces or even against the moderate leaders. As far as those leaders, no one listens to them, and they don't get media coverage either. They also keep quiet lest their pronouncements against violent expressions weaken the struggle for Eretz Yisrael.

"Conclusion: At this point, there is no need for provocations. The extremist portion of the lobby was the "driving force behind the Iraq War." "The main architects of the war are always said to be Mr. Rumsfeld and Mr. Cheney," Finkelstein said. "Well everyone in this room knows Mr. Rumsfeld and Mr. Cheney are not Jewish and they don't fit the profile of these Jewish neoconservatives. So how do Mearsheimer and Walt reconcile? (Rumsfeld and Cheney) are obviously not Jewish neoconservatives, and yet you say it was the Jewish neoconservatives who caused the war?"

James Morris said he agreed and disagreed with Finkelstein's arguments.

"I think some of his arguments about the Palestinian situation and the lobbying influencing what happens in occupied territories are accurate," Morris said, "but then again if he uses the same argument with the lobby and how it influences our policy and occupied territories. And about that time the attack on the USS Liberty happened and that's been covered up ever since."

"Also, you had 9/11 that happened," Morris said. "If you look at the paperwork that's out there and the scholarly publications...our support of Israel resulted not only the attack on the World Trade Center in '93 but in 9/11. So that's not in our national interest. So when he's trying to say that we can't define that term, it's not in our national interest, right? So supporting Israel...was a direct result for the plotters of those attacks."

Mujahidul Haque, a political science major, said the lecture was informative to him and that some of Finkelstein's arguments caught his attention.

"What he said pretty much about the Jewish neoconservatives," Haque said, "I think all the neoconservatives are pretty much the same. I don't think I would want to separate the Jewish and Christian neoconservatives (from each other). They all have the same agenda. Other than that, I pretty much agreed with everything else he said."

Later in the lecture, Finkelstein argued Mearsheimer's and Walt's claim that the Israel settlement population is serving our interests. Our agents who are planted everywhere continue to reinforce and to encourage an ongoing stream of violent expressions.

"We shouldn't prevent people from going up to the outposts. They stir things up without leaving any results, and they serve us. They are not understood by the broader public that reacts to them apathetically and disparagingly."

Yesiree. Protesters, keep on building outposts because no one supports you and in the end, we'll leave you to be slaughtered by the Arabs. That is how frightened the rulers are of this fast growing survival movement, and why Aviner is back at the forefront of the lying game. And he's not alone. Remember the IMF, who promised to pay the Jews of Gush Katif for their losses? They're back too, deluding the world about Israel's "booming" economy. ***

When I was recently in Crown Heights, I was interviewed by a director, who requested anonymity, but hint, hint, was recently featured by Jay Leno and the New York Times. Here is the widely watched short trailer of his work. <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=wBt-LxzXIIA>

The DVD of my 90 minute interview, uncut, with him is flying in from New York. In my world, this is big news. I can charge just $10. for this very special DVD. Write me at chamish@netvision.net.il Or at: Barry Chamish, POB 840157
