Judge says US can hold prisoners indefinitely

Prisoners can be held without being charged, indefinitely 20 May 2009 A federal judge says the United States can continue to hold some prisoners at Guantanamo Bay indefinitely without any charges. U.S. District Judge John Bates' opinion issued Tuesday night limited the Obama administration's definition of who can be held. But he said Congress in the days after Sept. 11, 2001 gave the president the authority to hold anyone involved in planning, aiding or carrying out the terrorist attacks.

MoD admits use of controversial 'enhanced blast' weapons in Afghanistan

The missile's warhead is made with a mixture of chemicals rather than a simple blast mechanism. 28 May 2009 British pilots in Afghanistan are firing an increasing number of "enhanced blast" thermobaric weapons, designed to kill everyone in buildings they strike, the Ministry of Defence has revealed. Since the start of this year more than 20 of the US-designed [What a surprise!] missiles, which have what is officially described as a "blast fragmentation warhead", have been fired by pilots of British Apache attack helicopters. A total of 20 were also fired last year after they were bought by the MoD from the Americans last May.

Obama: Iran Has the Right to Nuclear Power

President Barack Obama suggested that Iran may have some right to nuclear energy _ provided it proves by the end of the year that its aspirations are peaceful. In a BBC interview broadcast Tuesday, he also restated plans to pursue direct diplomacy with Tehran to encourage it set aside any ambitions for nuclear weapons it might harbor. Iran has insisted its nuclear program is aimed at generating electricity.

Are you a journalist? Canadian leaders swoon over Israel

Although you don't write the headlines -- it is true that Canada's leaders swoon over Israel. I am threatened, harassed and surveilled by Israel/Mossad research people in Canada -- like the National Post.

I have the police phone me to tell me what Henry Makow columns I can and cannot put in the Toronto Street News.

The policeman is embarrassed and ashamed to be doing it but tells me he has to under orders of Canadian Jewish Congress.

We receive the support of a woman who is a Jew who became the owner of Toronto Street News. I work with Orthodox Jews and their ad is on page 4 of every issue of Toronto Street News. My journalist friends are people like Henry Makow PhD who is also barred from speaking and working in public where he was a professor in Winnipeg. Ben Fulford, 6 years Asian bureau chief in Tokyo for Forbes Magazine is a Polish Jew whose father was in the Canadian diplomatic service. His grandmother was psychic medium for Mackenzie King who visited the Fulford home in Brockville.

My advertisers are threatened and attempts are made to smear Toronto Street News for their attention.

I know the power that the zionists have in the city.

You, as a Toronto journalist will no doubt reject this problem at Toronto Street News where I have simple contempt for the honesty of Toronto media on the zionist question.

So-called 'secret' meeting of world's richest people in New York

Buffett, Gates, Rockefeller, Turner, Winfrey, Bloomberg, Soros in media-blackout conference

By NIALL O'DOWD ,IrishCentral.Com
Bill Gates and Warren Buffett

A top-secret meeting of the world's richest people to discuss the global financial crisis was held in New York on May 5, IrishCentral.com has learned exclusively.

The mysterious, media-blackout meeting was called by Warren Buffett, CEO of Berkshire-Hathaway; Bill Gates, co founder of Microsoft; and David Rockefeller Jr., chairman of Rockefeller Financial Services.

In addition to Gates, Buffett and Rockefeller, the attendees included Oprah Winfrey, George Soros, Ted Turner, and New York City Mayor Michael Bloomberg, among others.

It was held 3pm Tuesday in the President's Room at Rockefeller University.

How so many giant figures in American life managed to interrupt and coordinate their schedules on such short notice, and meet in total secrecy in the world's media capital remains a mystery -- as does the ultimate outcome of the billionaires' conference.

In their letter of invitation, Gates, Buffett and Rockefeller cited the worldwide recession and the urgent need to plan for the future. They said they wanted to hear the views of a broad range of key leaders in the financial and philanthropic fields. Each attendee was given 15 minutes to deliver a presentation on how they saw the future global economic climate, the future priorities for philanthropy, and what they felt the elite group should do.

According to one of the attendees, Gates was the most-impressive speaker of the day, with Turner the most-outspoken and Warren Buffet the most-insistent on his agenda for change.

Winfrey was said to be in a "listening mode."

Gates was worth an estimated $57B in 2008; more recently, Buffett clocked in at an estimated $37B -- making them the richest Americans. Winfrey was once the world's only black billionaire, and has extensive holdings in the entertainment and publishing industries, as well as being a leading philanthropist.

Other invitees included Eli and Edythe Broad, whose current fortune is estimated at $5.2B by Forbes Magazine; John Morgridge, former CEO of Cisco and his wife Tashia; Peter Peterson, senior chairman of the Blackstone Group; Julian Robertson, founder of Tiger Management Corp.; and Patty Stonesifer, former CEO of the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation.

"They were all there, the great and the good," a participant told IrishCentral.com.

Opening Cracks and Mild Movement

By THK.

At what precise moment do you realize that your life is unraveling? When do you know beyond a doubt that you have lost control and no longer have any ability to determine how your day will unfold? Have you known all along; from the moment your addiction(s) began to manifest a life of its own? Did you know conclusively that you were helpless over an ever-growing and demoralizing demon?

Addictions are separate and distinct from habits or certain behaviors. Addictions deplete us of our capacity to choose freely, and more so leave us with the ominous belief that we cannot live without them. The truth is, we cannot, and do not, ever live with them. In fact, we never begin to live until we are released from the stranglehold of our addictions.

Being addicted to something, be it drugs, alcohol, sex, gambling, food, shopping etc., are things we discovered would take us away from feeling anything uncomfortable or painful that seriously eroded our ability to be present. In other words, the idea of remaining in a situation and feeling it completely terrorized us. In many cases, that situation was highly abusive and destructive. To escape it, even in the confines of our own minds, seems a reasonable thing to do and sometimes feels life saving. Reality can be too overwhelming at times and to fully comprehend and integrate what is happening can cause a person to go haywire, such as when a parent sexually molests their child. However, no matter what, we go haywire anyway and all we manage to do is suppress it. There is no real escape from reality, but there are distracttions and they are called addictions.

Addictions it seems help us at first and kill us later on. In addition, the destructive force of these maladaptive behaviors spews havoc on everyone, but most incredibly these ugly and deadly secrets get passed on. Any parents who suffer from addictions can be sure their children will too, and in most cases with greater intensity. Addictions escalate from generation to generation and you can be certain if you are a sex addict or an alcoholic, your children are doomed!

Freedom from addictions has to be the most sought after endeavor in a person's life. The deep heartfelt pangs for wholeness and freedom plague the addict every day and when a return to this state overrides all other considerations, healing can begin. Healing comes from attunement -- from contact with our real nature.
